Dear Representative,

We write to urge you to oppose H.R. 2672, “The CFPB Rural Designation Petition and Correction Act.” This bill would amend the 2010 Dodd-Frank Act to allow for increased opportunity for lenders to sidestep important consumer protections, including rules to ensure borrowers have the ability to repay their loans.

The new Qualified Mortgage (QM) standard provides lenders with an incentive to originate safe, affordable loans without the kind of risky product features that contributed to the collapse of the housing and financial markets. The rule also incents lenders to ensure borrowers have the ability to repay their loans, discouraging the poor underwriting standards that became all too common and put borrowers into mortgages they could not afford. These protections offer protection for borrowers, clarity for lenders and greater stability to the mortgage lending marketplace.

The rules also contain certain provisions related to loans made by creditors who operate in what are designated as “rural or underserved counties.” The final rules, for example, postpone certain restrictions on balloon payment qualified mortgages for small creditors in these areas. These loans do not fully amortize over the term of the note, thus leaving a “balloon payment,” or a large amount due, at the end of the mortgage. The CFPB adopted a rule in May 2013 which created a two-year transition period (ending in January 2016) that allows certain creditors to make balloon payment qualified mortgages even if they do not operate predominately in rural or underserved areas.

H.R. 2672 would create a costly, cumbersome and redundant process for the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) to follow when implementing the rules as they relate to rural and underserved areas. It is costly and cumbersome because the bill calls for a review of individual petitions to determine whether a loan falls within the definition of ‘rural and underserved areas’; it is redundant because the CFPB has already committed to using a two-year transition period to review the definition of ‘rural and underserved’ as it applies in mortgage lending.

Congress should allow the CFPB to complete its review before stepping in to change the process. The CFPB has two years to work on the modification of the rural definition before regulatory requirements change. If Congress wants to consider action, it should do so after the CFPB has had the chance to study the issue and make a considered decision on how to proceed.

We appreciate your consideration and urge you to oppose H.R. 2672.

Sincerely,

Alliance for a Just Society
