Dear Representative,

On behalf of Americans for Financial Reform, we are writing to express our opposition to HR 2629, the “Fostering Innovation Act”, HR 4564, “The Equity Crowdfunding Improvement Act”, and HR 4697, “The Small-Cap Access to Capital Act”. These three proposals would reduce investor protections and market transparency without genuinely benefiting sustainable capital formation and job growth.¹

These bills share in common the assumption that our financial markets are handicapped by excessive disclosures and excessive protections for investors. In fact, the experience of the last fifteen years in U.S. securities markets has been one of increasing investor losses due to inadequate and at times fraudulent accounting, disclosure, and sales practices.

- HR 2629, the “Fostering Innovation Act”, would exempt numerous public companies from Sarbanes-Oxley 404(b) requirements designed to prevent accounting fraud. Provisions in the JOBS Act of 2012 already exempted a set of new ‘emerging growth’ companies from this requirement for a multi-year ‘on ramp’ period. But HR 2629 would greatly expand permanent exemptions from these accounting protections for already existing established companies.
- HR 4564, the “Equity Crowdfunding Improvement Act” would impose further statutory deregulation on the on-line funding marketplaces for start-up companies created by the JOBS Act. SEC rules governing these crowdfunding sites have already been strongly criticized by the SEC’s Investor Advisory Committee as inadequate to protect investors.² Deregulatory changes that lead to additional investor losses funding extremely risky early-stage startups are likely to discredit the entire ‘crowdfunding’ model, not assist capital formation.
- HR 4697, the “Small-Cap Access to Capital Act” would greatly expand the definition of ‘well known seasoned issuer’ to include a substantial majority of public companies. Such companies would be eligible for automatic shelf registration of securities, which permits them to sell securities offerings without any prior review of such offerings by Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) staff. Professor John Coffee of Columbia University has called this bill ‘radically deregulatory’ and pointed out that, far from benefiting initial capital raising, it would instead facilitate secondary market stock sales by company insiders without adequate public notice.³

The Committee should not rush to add more ill-considered deregulatory measures to the already major deregulation contained in the JOBS Act of 2012. Instead, the Committee should work with the SEC to ensure adequate protection for investors while preserving the capital formation benefits of properly managed equity markets. We urge the Committee to reject this legislation.

Sincerely,
Americans for Financial Reform
