AFR Welcomes the Obama Administration's Call for a Strong Fiduciary-Duty Requirement

President Obama came down squarely on the side of working families when he announced his support for reforms to establish a higher standard for investment advice. Developed and championed by the Department of Labor (DOL), these reforms will update a set of 40-year old rules governing those who give advice affecting the investment of money in employee retirement plans.

The old rules, which date from the 1970s, fail to cover many situations that arise in today's era of individually retirement plans - "rollovers" between a 401-K and an IRA, for example. These gaps allow brokers to recommend investments that make more money for them, but less for their clients. This kind of conflicted advice costs retirement savers some $17 billion a year, according to a new report from the President's Council of Economic Advisors, or more than 10 percent of their potential returns for millions of retirees.

AFR has long supported updating these rules to make advisors put their clients' interest first, and is an active member of the Save Our Retirement coalition. Stopping Wall Street undermining of retirement security through conflicted advice is hugely important, and we look forward to continuing to work toward a strong final rule.

Following are the partners of Americans for Financial Reform.

All the organizations support the overall principles of AFR and are working for an accountable, fair and secure financial system. Not all of these organizations work on all of the issues covered by the coalition or have signed on to every statement.
